Dragon’s Journeyman Electrician holds an important role within the team. A dedicated and solutions-oriented tradesperson, the Journeyman is responsible for the execution of electrical construction in a fast-paced commercial setting. Dragon’s operations are founded in efficiency; as such, the ideal candidate will be detail-oriented and experienced in the commercial (or residential) market.

As part of a growing team, Dragon’s tradespeople are problem solvers with a ‘can-do’ attitude often assuming broader supervisory duties.

Key Objectives:

- Installation, service, maintenance and troubleshooting of electrical equipment – primarily on commercial construction sites
- Actively seek more efficient methods of execution; perform reliably and eagerly
- Be a leader in safety and a mentor of high-performance

Key Tasks & Responsibilities:

- Operate zero-incident worksites; operate within a safe and healthy work environment by following Dragon’s QHSE program; always complying with applicable regulations; acting as a safety-centric role model
- Reads and interprets drawings/schematics/control diagrams and applicable electrical codes to determine layout of electrical equipment
- Conduct maintenance and testing on commercial electrical systems, ensuring installations are to manufacturer standards and comply with electrical codes, including in fire alarms and security systems
- QA/QC testing and documentation
- Identify and communicate on-site issues to Foreman/Site Supervisor, resolving each transparently and effectively to keep projects on track
- Provide exceptional customer service; confidently communicate with customers and answer questions as required
- Develop and maintain solid working relationships with peers, management and on-site trades; courteous and professional demeanor is a must
- Train and mentor apprentices
